We are planning activities for children of different ages. It will be up to the parent to guide his or her child through the program. Quillisascut is a working farm; we ask that everyone be respectful of the animals and living things that live here. This is their home. The everyday work of the farm will need to go forward even if you don't choose to participate in a certain activity. There is pollen and bees and goat poo in addition to beautiful produce and cute animals. We teach conservation, sustainability, and good eating habits. The cycles of birth, life, sex, and death are very close in the farm setting--it is not possible to be insulated from Mother Nature here--so be prepared to have those conversations with your child if such a situation arises.

We have taken every precaution to make Quillisascut Farm a safe environment for visitors of all ages.
